5 Strategies To Deepen His Love

Every relationship should be founded on love.

I know it sounds a bit cheesy, but when you take away all the drama, all the efforts, all the little comings-and-goings that happen in any relationship -- strip all that away -- you'll be left with just love. It's the FOUNDATION on which any healthy relationship stands.

In architecture, a building is only as strong as its foundation. You could build a building as flashy as the ones they build in Dubai, but if you don't have a deep foundation for it, the next earthquake could spell a disaster for you and your little creation!

And that applies in relationships, as well. The deeper your relationship's foundation goes -- the deeper the LOVE he feels for you -- then the longer the relationship lasts, the stronger the relationship becomes, and the happier the two of you get!

Now why am I telling you this?

Simply because over the years, I've seen so many women neglect this little fact of love and life. I've seen so many women think, "Okay, I think he loves me enough. I think I can afford to NOT work on the relationship for a while. I think I can afford to focus on ME for now."

Friends, I don't want you to have this kind of "me first" attitude. Because this is exactly the mindset that causes break-up after break-up after break-up in the world today! When people stop working on their relationships, and start focusing on THEMSELVES and what's in it for THEM, bad things happen.

And I'd like you to get rid of its likelihood of happening in your OWN relationship. I want you to focus LESS on yourself, and focus MORE on the two of you. I want you to focus more on the relationship than on your own selfish needs.

Why? Because if you take care of your relationship, soon enough, the relationship will start taking care of you. No joke! I'll explain more about that in this special report.

For now, I'd like you to take a pen and paper, and write down these five (5) special strategies you can employ to deepen his love for you. These are some of the most enjoyable ways you can deepen the foundation of your relationship -- but no matter how fun and "silly" they may sound, they're still some of the most effective ways you can guarantee your relationship standing the test of time.

Strategy #1 - Always Think Of Him As More Than He Really Is.

One of the easiest mistakes to make as a "good girlfriend" is to poke fun at and criticize his flaws. Sometimes it's hard not to laugh at his little quirks -- it's simply our "motherly instinct" to correct him kicking into action. But done over time, it can chisel away at a man's confidence and self-esteem.

Of course, that's a bad thing. When a man loses his self-esteem, he's going to find ways to over-compensate on the things he does. He also starts doing crazy, dangerous, reckless things to earn your approval (like getting into a bar fight and then bragging about it to you).

But worst of all, if you keep seeing him for just who and just what he is, soon enough he's going to see YOU for just who and just what YOU are. And that's scary, since I'm pretty sure no one's perfect -- and eventually our jaded boyfriends will find something about our OWN personalities to make fun of.

Not pretty!

So instead of seeing him for JUST who and what he is, learn to exaggerate a bit -- and see him for MORE than he is!

For instance, if he stands 5'7", keep teasing about him being 5'10". Or if he has a regular job, don't let him forget that you're pretty impressed he's holding an important, hard-to-get position -- and keep encouraging him to advance his career even further.

If he looks average, tell him he's handsome. If he dresses ordinarily, tell him his new hoodie makes him look yummy. These little quirky comments, done over time, will make him love and appreciate you more. (And more. And more. And more. And more!)

And the great thing about it is that after a while, he'll start complimenting you on things you DON'T expect, too. The complimenting can turn into a little game only the two of you play -- something that makes the relationship all the more fun to be in.

Always think of him for more than he really is!

Strategy #2 - Stop The Criticism.

Let's face it -- we women are naggers by nature, and it's very easy for us to spot the little inconsistencies in life. We get irritated easily by inconsiderate co-workers who make our jobs a bit harder for us, we get annoyed by strangers who talk to us like they've known us forever, and we go bonkers over the zits we find on our faces every morning.

That's fine, I suppose, although I can tell you this -- your life would be much less stressful and much more fun if you stopped judging every little thing around you.

And yes, that includes your boyfriend. (Actually, it means ESPECIALLY your boyfriend.)

It's important to stop criticizing him for his little flaws and shortcomings. Some of us are really good at that, by the way -- when we like red roses, but he sends us white ones, we point it out. When he gets us a blouse we don't particularly care for, we let him know.

Bad moves!

You should never, EVER criticize him when he does a nice thing for you. Yup, that also includes the times when he doesn't do a good job of impressing you.

Always be thankful. It's a much easier way of deepening the love in your relationship than by correcting every little wrong thing he does!

Strategy #3 - Always Use Positive Suggestion -- When It Comes To The Bedroom.

If the relationship is already more than just a few months old, it's likely you've given it enough time to mature, and to lay its emotional foundation down nice and deep. Now it's safe and strong enough to handle the rigors of a healthy sex life!

But sure, it's often unlikely that everything he does with you in the bedroom will be to your satisfaction. For instance, he may tend to settle into a predictable routine of positions during sex, or he may not be as good a kisser as you hoped he'd be. How do you solve such a problem?

Easy -- by positive suggestion.

Positive suggestion is basically giving him your thoughts and feelings on a situation WITHOUT putting his own performance (and manhood) in question. For instance, you can ask him questions like, "Love, I'd love to try this new position..." or "Hon, can we try this? It sounds pretty fun..."

See? It doesn't hurt his pride, but it still sends the message that things could STILL get better in bed.

The WRONG way of doing it -- and many women make this mistake a lot -- is by criticizing him when he fails to satisfy you. Once you tell him things like, "You have no idea what to do in the bedroom, do you?" or "You're pretty small," it tends to stick with him for the rest of his life -- and the sex will ALWAYS be lackluster after you let go of such careless words.

Keep Strategy #1 in mind, as well -- the more you praise him and think of him as more than he really is, the higher his self-esteem becomes, and the more likely he is to try and become an even better boyfriend.

Strategy #4 - Trust Him.

Believe me, there WILL be times in the relationship when your patience with him will be tested. I think the best example would be when you're lost on the road, and he keeps refusing to ask for directions. (Yup, it happens in real life just as often as it happens on TV and the movies!)

Another good example would be when he offers to do some "handyman" jobs around your house, such as fixing your roof. Men love tinkering with tools, but if he's not a handyman by trade, you can expect him to take a bit longer to finish the job. So don't get too worked up if he's taking too long to finish!

Friends, I'd like you to relax, and trust him with the things he does. There are just some things that he'd rather do on his own, without your help (or unnecessary feedback). Besides, if you don't let him practice on those things, he's not going to get any better. So just trust him with the work, and let him learn on his own!

Don't look at the delays and the little screw-ups as bad things. That's just a terrific way of stressing yourself out. Instead, learn to laugh and enjoy the learning curve. After all, the relationship is much more of a JOURNEY than a destination -- so might as well enjoy the sights!

Besides, does it really matter much if he takes two days longer to fix the roof? What's two days compared to the prospect of a happy LIFETIME with him?

Trust him!

Strategy #5 - Appreciate Him.

I think it goes without saying that all men are boys at heart. No matter how big, strong, and mature a man can get, it doesn't change the fact that deep inside that tough outer shell, there's a boy's ego that's waiting to be filled.

This is something that most women don't know -- that the warrior really is a child inside. And many women make the mistake of thinking that if a guy is strong enough to handle himself, there's no real need to inflate his ego and appreciate the things he does for you.

I beg to differ.

Deep inside, he's secretly yearning for your approval. It's often not enough that you feel happy, and contented, and loved by him -- every now and then, you have to say it. You have to let him hear it. You have to put your feelings into words.

By the way, don't underestimate the power of the words you say. As I've illustrated in the first four strategies, words have enormous power to either make -- or break -- a relationship.

Words are powerful. I mean, even God created the universe with just words, right?

So do make the effort to show him your appreciation. Show him your trust. And show him your love. When he feels that you appreciate the things he does for you, then it's going to encourage him to do even bigger, better things for you as the years go by.

Make It Your Mission To Deepen His Love

Friends, here's another thing you'll want to know. Deepening his love isn't a one-shot deal. It's not something you only do during the first week of the relationship, or the first few months of the relationship, or even the first several years of the relationship.

Nope, deepening his love is a lifelong commitment. If you want your relationship to stand the test of time, then you'll have to invest a little time to regularly strengthen its foundation. And I've just given you five powerful ways to do so!

You know how the happiest, most successful women handle their relationships? They deepen the love their boyfriends have for them regularly. They do it every single day. As a result, their boyfriends love them more -- and the relationship grows stronger -- every single day!

And guess what -- they can do it everyday because it's become a habit for them. These five strategies are so deeply ingrained in their own personalities and mindsets, that deepening the love their boyfriends have for them has actually become AUTOMATIC!

They don't CHOOSE to deepen their boyfriends' love for them. They just do. Automatically. And friends, I want YOU to become one of the happiest, most successful women in my circle.

Keep these five strategies in mind, and always be on the lookout to sprinkle them in your own relationship every now and then. The more you do it, the easier it becomes -- and the sooner it becomes AUTOMATIC for you, too! Now go out there, and make his love for you last forever.
